If you give him a subject replete with interest as is this topic, he compels his heavers to listen spell-bound, carried away by his brilliant word pictures. Such was the case in this listance. To use his own figure, the common facts of history are the dry bones, but God has given us a faculty called imagination, which enables us to clothe these bones with sinesy, muzels and flesh, and thus become under the magic touch of the elequent apeaker, living bodice, walking, talking and acting their parts in this life. Most skillfully did the Doctor use his spells to call before his henrers the worthies of those days, thus giving the young ladies most valuable suggestions, which will bear fruit in increased love for the study of history.

The mext lecture of the course will be delivered by S. L. Jesson, M. D., on Wednesdey, October 12, upon Physiology and Hygiene. Others will follow upon she second and fourth Wednesdays of each month. The patrons and friends are cordially invited.

"A GREAT WRONG,"

John A. Stevens' Melodrama Presented a the Grand. The rather sensational melodrams, "A Freat Wrong," was produced at the Grand last night. It will not do to criticize the play very closely as a literary production though it has some merit, and the plot is original, and whatever may be said of it, original, and whatever may be said of it, it is not dult. It is interesting from fret to last, and is presented in a manner to bring out its full strength. Mr. J. B. Studley, the star, is a finished actor of the old school and does a difficult part artistically constant. old school and does a difficult part artistically and well. The support is for the most part good. Miss Abbie Pearce, as Eliza Jurley, showed talent of the highest order. No role was ever more naturally enacted. Mr. Meldon, Mr. Colton, Mr. McIntire, Mr. Raker, Miss Foster, Miss March and Miss Kecselle carried their parts creditably. Mr. Crolins is a broad character sctor and caught the audience at once. In fact the whole production did that. At times part of every sentence was drowned in applause, such applause as is solden heard in a Wheeling theatrs. The house was packed to the docre. The scenery is artistic and the mechanical effects great. The pices will be repeated this evening. It has elements that will please and interest all classes of theatre goers, and doubless the house will again be crowded.

The Grand Jury Beturns 24 indictments.
An Interesting Case.
The United States District Grand Jury

set evening completed its work and was Yeaterday, well Attended from the City and discharged. The indictments returned as true bills number 24. They are for violations of the internal revenue, postal and pension laws, but saide from the indict nent against A. M. Crow already mentioned in these columns, the officers of the court refuse to give out any of the in-dictments for the reason that none of the in-parties presented are in custody or under recognizance. It is understood on protty good authority, however, that an indict-ment was found sgainst W. F. Richards, Mayor of Olarkeburg, and editor of the Olarkeburg Telegram, for sending obscene matter through the mails. There is also at least one indictment for blackmailing, over tachnically using the mails to extert or technically using the mails to extori or technically using the mails to extort money.

There was no business in open court yesterday. Judge Jackson spent most of the day in putting the fluishing touches on his opinion in the case of Hiram L. Opis versus if. W. Castlemen and others, a case of rational interaction.

There are a number of girls of this one's age and a little older, walking in the same downward course. The police see them on unfrequented streets at unseesomable hours, but cannot arrest them miless caught in some violation of an ordinance. Girls are allowed to be out at night, and for lack of butter occupation, noon take the downward path. Lately the numbers of such young but hardened cinners has known so as to attract general attention. The officers are comparatively poweries to arrest the lide of ruin, but it parents did their duty by their daughters the state of affairs could not arise.
